

CIO Mariners Tie Up Ports; AFL Men May Pierce Pickets

(By The Associated Press)

CIO mariners were to exchange places with AFL seamen on picket lines around the nation's deep water ports today as the greatest maritime stoppage in history continued.

However, in Baltimore, William Rentz, port agent for the AFL Seafarers International Union, which with the AFL sailors of the Pacific, ended its nationwide strike, said that AFL seamen in the Maryland port expected today to cross picket lines established by the CIO men.

His announcement came several hours after Paul Hall, port agent in New York for the SIU-SUP, said in announcing the end of the AFL strike that AFL members would refuse to cross CIO picket lines.

AFL Pickets Leave

The AFL withdrew all its east coast and Gulf coast pickets last night with this announcement:

"The operators informed us of their willingness to follow the original agreement signed by them and the SIU-SUP, which gave the Seafarers the highest wages ever received by seamen. We now have in our possession a signed agreement to that effect, with our objectives won, the strike is called off." AFL west coast pickets were withdrawn previously.

The end of the AFL strike was made possible by the action of John R. Steelman, economic stabilizer, in amending Wage Stabilizing Board regulations to permit government agencies such as the U. S. Maritime Commission to pay the same wage scale as private operators in the same field.

This uphield wage increases won by the SIU-SUP in negotiations with ship operators.

Big Monthly Boost

Wages would thus be raised from the $17.50 monthly increase approved by the Wage Stabilization Board to $22.50 for west coast AFL men and to $27.50 for east coast AFL workers.

But the CIO National Maritime Union, which had won a $17.50 monthly increase, struck yesterday to enforce demands for "parity" with the AFL mariners. They were joined in the walkout by CIO Marine Cooks and Stewards, and the Marine Firemen, Oilers, Wipers and Water-tenders, an independent organization.

Joseph Curran, head of the NMU which has 90,000 members, said the strike would be supported by 200,000 members of the six CIO and one independent union forming the committee for maritime unity.

Threatens Tie-up

Representatives of the NMU and ship operators met in New York early today in a negotiating session but adjourned after two hours until 4 p. m. (EDT) to permit the operators to study the wage demands presented by the union.

Curran, addressing his members before a strike vote in New York, declared "We won't go back until all seamen have parity in wages."

He also said after a meeting with Frank J. Taylor, head of the American Merchant Marine Institute, which represents companies' sailing ships under contract to the NMU, that the union planned to "tie up every ship in all ports" by picketing both AFL and NMU-manned vessels.

Washington, Sept. 14 (P)—Republicans accused President Truman today of angling for political advantage on the issue of American relations with Russia and invited him to choose between Secretary of State Byrnes and Secretary of Commerce Wallace as his exponent of foreign policy.

As GOP members loosed blasts of criticism, there were widening repercussions elsewhere from the President's prior approval of Wallace's Thursday night plea at a New York political meeting for a softer policy toward Russia and his endorsement of the sphere-of-influence idea previously repudiated by Byrnes.

1. It became clear that Mr. Truman has a full-sized cabinet split over foreign policy on his hands.

2. Some uncertainty over policy was evidenced at the State Department. Undersecretary Will L. Clayton told a news conference the Wallace speech was not cleared with the department and that it was not quite clear to him just what the President intended by his approval. Any clarification, he said, would have to come from Mr. Truman.

Top officials left the impression, however, that they believed no actual change was contemplated from the policies Byrnes has pursued.

3. In London, a spokesman said the British Foreign Office was particularly surprised at Wallace's criticism of "British Imperialism." Radio commentators there took that note and also criticized Wallace's warning against close identification of American foreign policy with that of Great Britain.

There was no doubt from the Republicans' reaction that they believed Mr. Truman had, from the political standpoint, made a major blunder.

STREET TARRING BEGINS MONDAY; WARNS DRIVERS

Tarring of streets in the borough will start Monday, Borough Engineer LeRoy H. Winebrenner announced today. Automobiles must be off the streets by 7 a. m. Monday or they will be towed away, and owners will have to pay the towing charges, he added.

"Car owners who park their automobiles in front of their homes will have to find some other place to leave them during the tarring operations," Mr. Winebrenner said.

The borough engineer also warned residents against sweeping sidewalk and gutter refuse and dirt into the streets. Borough workmen will sweep the streets to be tarred. If dirt is swept into the streets after the sweeping, the tar will not stick, he said.

Schedule For Tarring

Tarring will start Monday morning on East Middle street, from South Stratton street to Fourth street. Other streets to be tarred, in the order the work is to be done, are as follows:

South Stratton street from the south end north to East Lincoln avenue.

North and South Washington streets, from West Broadway south to Steinwehr avenue.

Breckenridge street, from South Washington street to Baltimore St.

The work will be done by the borough under a county and state aid setup.

ASK TRUMAN TO 'MAKE CHOICE'

Washington, Sept. 14 (P)—Republicans accused President Truman today of angling for political advantage on the issue of American relations with Russia and invited him to choose between Secretary of State Byrnes and Secretary of Commerce Wallace as his exponent of foreign policy.

As GOP members loosed blasts of criticism, there were widening repercussions elsewhere from the President's prior approval of Wallace's Thursday night plea at a New York political meeting for a softer policy toward Russia and his endorsement of the sphere-of-influence idea previously repudiated by Byrnes.

TIME FOR XMAS MAIL OVERSEAS; AIR RATES DROP

Postmaster Lawrence E. Oyler today reminded townsfolk that the time has come to begin shipping Christmas packages to men overseas with the armed forces, announced that starting October 1 the airmail rates are scheduled for a drop and further announced that Uncle Sam's postal service is going to observe a National Letter Writing week in October.

Taking things in chronological order he announced that beginning October 1 those sending airmail letters will be able to ship their letters by air for five cents an ounce both to anybody living within the U. S. or any soldier, sailor, marine, or civilian working for the armed forces who gets his mail through an APO or FPO.

The new rate of a nickel an ounce is more than a 50 per cent reduction in the case of the men in the armed forces overseas and a drop of three cents in continental mail. Up to October 1 the regular eight cents an ounce for air mail in the U. S. will continue as will the six cents per half ounce date for airmail to overseas installations.

Xmas Mailing Dates

While the airmail rate in the U. S. has been dropped rates to folks overseas continue as before and local residents who may want to drop a chatty letter to Winston Churchill will be clipped 30 cents per half ounce, and the rate for an airmail to Uncle Joe Stalin is practically out of this world, probably due to weather conditions over Yugoslavia.

In regard to Christmas packages to Uncle Sam's nephews in service overseas, Postmaster Oyler reports that for the army men October 15 to November 15 are the dates during which packages may be sent without a request from the soldier.

For those men who are stationed in China, the Middle East, India and the Pacific Islands, the postmaster suggests Christmas gifts be sent prior to November 1 because of the distances that the parcels must travel.

Those packages sent to the men overseas during the period October 15 to November 15 should be marked "Christmas Parcel" and the letter carriers will do their damndest to get them there before December 25, Oyler added.

One Package Weekly Limit

The Christmas packages to men overseas are not to exceed 70 pounds or be over 100 inches in length and girth. Postmaster Oyler points out however that that size and weight should be big and heavy enough to take care of most anything one wishes to send.

He adds that the army suggests that the sender send something that the soldier has not got enough of already, such as food and clothing, in the Christmas package. The navy, marines and coast guard, who can receive packages without request at any time suggest that folks send the Christmas packages not later than October 15 in order that they may get to the men on time.

No one may send more than one Christmas package per week to the same person overseas.

As to National Letter Writing Week, scheduled from October 13 to 19 the postmaster suggests that the idea is self explanatory. The motto for the week is "Make Someone Feel Better. Write Today!" and everybody is urged to take advantage of the week to get off that letter to an old friend that he has been threatening to write for months.

NINE CRITICALLY HURT AS HOTEL IS DESTROYED

Hot Springs, Ark., Sept. 14 (P)—Nine persons were burned critically and several others slightly injured early today in a spectacular fire which destroyed the 75-room Great Northern hotel.

Police, fire department and hospital authorities were unable to say whether any occupants were missing. No deaths were reported. The fire broke out at 12:50 a. m. in the 50-year-old brick hotel. Officials could not estimate the number of guests registered in the three-story brick structure.

List Of Injured

The Hot Springs fire department said many of the guests jumped to safety or escaped down ladders. A search of the blackened debris was made difficult by the still-smouldering wreckage.

Levi hospital authorities released this list of persons critically burned, all with third degree burns: Louis Barrett, New Orleans, La.; Chester Ross, Denver, Colo.; J. D. Truitt, Miami, Fla.; Arnold Bray, Hot Springs; H. H. Johnson, Sedalia, Mo.; Jimmy Adams and Martha Adams, his wife, of Arkadelphia, Ark.; Norman Castle, Hot Springs; and Vera McBeth, Monroe, La. Four other persons who were burned received first aid treatment and were released, the hospital said.

Rescues Four

The fire, cause of which was not yet known, sent flames 75 feet into the air. By 2:30 a. m. the walls had caved in.

Four ambulances were kept busy rushing the injured to the hospital as thousands of spectators in this resort city lined the streets to watch the fire, some narrowly escaping injury themselves when live wires tumbled to the streets.

Buddy Hogg, 26-year-old cab driver, told reporters he was across the street shortly before 1 a. m. when the first saw smoke and flames rolling out of a top story window. Hogg raced into the hotel lobby, took the elevator to the top floor and helped four persons to safety.

Six-Month Term In Jail For Condon

A six-to-twelve month sentence was imposed on Joseph M. Condon, 26, of Emmitsburg, in Franklin county court Friday, after he pleaded guilty to charges of burglary and larceny at the Blue Ridge Summit Keystone Garage on August 29. Judge E. C. Wingerd directed that if a physical examination shows that Condon needs medical treatment he is to be released to a Veterans Administration hospital.

Condon, who also is wanted in Maryland for the theft of two cars and in Adams county as a parole violator, testified that his mind sometimes goes blank as the result of head wounds he received as a soldier overseas when a dud shell he was moving exploded. He denied knowledge of any crimes he is alleged to have committed.

Condon's wife appeared in court Friday morning and appealed for leniency for her husband. She, too, told of his periods of "mental black-outs" since his discharge from the army.

LAUDS COUNTY FOR NUMBER OF ENLISTMENTS

Sgt. Walter Stubbs, local recruiting officer, today announced that five more county youths will go to Harrisburg Monday for physical examinations for army entrance. All are 17- or 18-year-old youths who recently ended high school studies.

In making the announcement the local sergeant paid tribute to the young men of the county who, he says, are showing a patriotic spirit in seeking army duty equalled in only a few other sections of the country.

As a result of the tremendous response on the part of the young men of the county, this section is producing more men than would be called under the regular draft, Stubbs said.

Platoon Plan

The response has been so great so far, Stubbs declared, that he is doubtful whether a new plan announced by the War Department today will be effective in the county. The new plan calls for formation of a platoon of men from one county who will go into service together for three year terms in the same branch and who will be kept together through training and service as the Adams county platoon, or any other designation wished to be given it by the men forming it.

At least 20 men must join at the same time to form a platoon and the sergeant said today he doubted if there were twenty men available in the county today who have either not had previous military service, or who are eligible for army service.

Two Enlist

The five men scheduled for physicals at Harrisburg Monday include Robert Lewis Rife, 18, son of Mrs. Margaret L. Rife, Biglerville R. 1, a graduate of Biglerville high school this year, who signed for a three-year term with the army air force; Thomas H. McCarthy, son of Mr. and Mrs. James McCarthy, Biglerville R. 1, another Biglerville high school graduate this year, who also signed for three years with the air force; Cornelius Christian Knorr, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Knorr, Gettysburg R. 2, who graduated from Gettysburg high school last year and spent a year at Gettysburg college and who signed for 18 months, unassigned.

Also signed for 18-month terms are Robert G. Taylor, son of Mrs. Helen Taylor, Fayetteville R. 1, and Lawrence E. McGlaughlin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McGlaughlin, 46 Railroad street.

In addition to the five men previously announced as taking physical examinations at Harrisburg last Monday, all of whom passed for army duty, two others were accepted into the army from the county this week. They are Eugene Strausbaugh, husband of Mrs. Geraldine Strausbaugh, 132 Fourth street, who served five years and 11 months in the army and who re-enlisted as a staff sergeant with the medical corps and Eugene B. Johnson, Bendersville, who signed for three years with the army engineers.

TRAIL OF OIL LEADS TO FINES, TRAFFIC SNARLS

Charles Leslie Heaton, 24, Baltimore, Md., started for Chambersburg Friday afternoon and left a trail, broad and oily, that had motorists and police, state highway and borough maintenance departments working frantically to restore things to normal.

The trail left behind Heaton was a two foot wide stream of fuel oil, a total of 1,600 gallons of it, spread in a wide band along the road from Baltimore to Gettysburg and on the Lincoln highway from Gettysburg to the top of Mt. Newman.

Driving a tractor-trailer owned by E. D. Matlock, Philadelphia, and loaded with 4,250 gallons of oil of the Transoil company of Baltimore, Heaton told police after he was stopped that he had reported the leak at Baltimore before he started.

Police Called Out

About midway between Baltimore and Gettysburg he reported that the load was leaking faster. Both times he got the same answer from his home office, Heaton told police. The answer was "Go ahead."

Heaton continued. In the meantime Maryland drivers started skidding on the roads and a member of the Maryland State Roads commission called a member of the Pennsylvania State Highway department warning Pennsylvania and asking Pennsylvania to do something about it.

The state highway official called the local sub-station of the state police, who called the local borough police at 2:30 o'clock asking them to stop the truck as it went through Gettysburg. The borough police, looking at a broad ribbon of oil on Baltimore street, reported that the truck had already passed here.

State Policeman Charles Downey, on duty at the local sub-station then called Chambersburg where Pfc. Anthony Martin, who at one time was stationed here, dashed out to intercept the leaking truck.

Streets Scrubbed Here

At the top of Mt. Newman truck and police met. State Policeman Martin called Gettysburg and Chief of Police Harpster went out to bring Heaton back to the borough.

The final results were: Mechanics from Gettysburg repaired the truck which was parked off the road at Mt. Newman. Borough police charged Heaton before Justice of the Peace Robert P. Snyder for having a leaking load in Gettysburg.

State police charged Heaton before Justice Snyder for having a leaking load in Cumberland township.

Gettysburg borough workers got out hoses and scrubbed the streets. Newman's Hill Cindered

State highway trucks went to Mt. Newman and cindered the hill to keep cars from skidding down its long and somewhat dangerous curves.

Maryland cindered and washed and, according to reports received here, had several accidents which were caused by the slippery oil on the road.

Matlock came to Gettysburg and paid fines on the two charges. Local officials said Maryland probably would bring some similar charges against the truck driver.

SQUATTERS ARE POLITICAL ISSUE FOR BRITISHERS

By DEWITT MACKENZIE (AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

An observant Florida editor has asked me for an interpretation of London's communist-supported squatter campaign which has produced the astonishing though colorful spectacle of hundreds of vacant luxury apartments in London being occupied by homeless invaders under expert guidance.

Well, that's a good question, because as I see it this movement has been taken over by British communists in a smart political maneuver. It is calculated to embarrass the present socialist government and to lay the ground-work for its defeat in the next general election which under normal circumstances would be held four years hence.

To get the full import of this move, one must understand what happened in the general election a year ago. Britain then amazed the world by turning out the conservative government, headed by the famous warleader, Winston Churchill, and electing a Labor (Socialist) House of Commons.

Put them on Trial Now that didn't mean that the majority of the normally conservative people of England suddenly had swung hard left. What happened was that a lot of conservatives, being dissatisfied with the Churchill government's handling of domestic problems, decided to give the socialists a chance to see what they could do with such pressing questions as demobilization, employment and housing. So these conservatives—without abandoning their political beliefs—voted for the Socialists and put them on trial without regard to politics.

When I was in England a few months ago I talked with numerous political experts about the situation. The socialists recognized that they were indeed on trial and that if they didn't make good they would be thrown out in the next general election through loss of votes among people outside the socialist party. That is, the socialists vote alone wouldn't be sufficient for reelection.

No Love Lost But what trend would the voting take? Would it swing back into the conservative fold, or would it go still further left and give the untried communists a chance? Some highly placed socialists professed to fear that it would go red. However, the majority of observers felt that the country would return to conservatism if the socialists didn't make good.

Be that as it may, there is no love between British socialists and British communists. The new government has turned thumbs down on communism for home consumption, and London and Moscow have been viewing each other through dark glasses—as witness their fiery clashes in the "peace" conference and "United" Nations security council.

So shrewd British communists saw a chance in the bad housing situation not only to cause the socialist government trouble but to make British communism the hero of the English working class—the Ism which could deliver the goods where both conservatives and socialists had failed. Furthermore—and this is important—any more which the socialist government might make to eject squatters would be likely to put it in the position of favoring "capital" as against the Man-in-the-street.

Mother Murders Son And Suicides

Liverpool, Pa., Sept. 14 (AP)—State Police Detective Carl Hartman reported Mrs. Lena Elizabeth Coleman, 30, fatally shot her four year old son to death while he slept in his crib and then turned the revolver on herself at their home here early today.

"It was murder and suicide," said Deputy Coroner John Wilt in announcing there would be no inquest into the deaths.

Hartman said Arthur I. Coleman told him he found the body of the child, Arthur, Jr., in a second floor bedroom and that of his wife in the living room on the first floor. A revolver was at her side, he added.

Coleman, coming home from work on the night shift as a railroad worker, stated he was forced to break a window to gain entrance after finding all doors locked.

Wilt said the woman's physician told him she was despondent and in ill health.

GET REPORT ON DIVORCE TODAY

Philadelphia, Sept. 14 (AP)—A special committee of prelates was scheduled to make a report today to the 55th triennial convention of the Protestant Episcopal church on its attempts to form a plan for liberalization of the church's marriage and divorce canons.

After heated debate, the Church's House of Bishops yesterday voted down 66-44 a marriage-divorce liberalization plan which a commission on matrimony had taken six years to write.

The rejected report was aimed at lifting the restriction that no one may remarry in the church during the lifetime of a former mate except the innocent party to a divorce granted on grounds of adultery. The commission on matrimony recommended that remarriage be permitted whenever the bishop of a diocese determines that a broken marriage has not been a true union of body, mind and spirit.

While the House of Bishops was to consider the special committee's report, the proposal for the possible merger of the Episcopal church with the Presbyterian church was to be discussed further in the House of Clerical and Lay deputies.

The resolution to liberalize Canon 17, the marriage law of the church, was offered by the Rt. Rev. William Scarlett, of Missouri, after the Rt. Rev. Malcolm Peabody, of central New York, moved to make the law more stringent by forbidding marriage of divorcees.

DISAPPEARING ACT

St. Joseph, Mo. (AP)—Three days ago Orville Rosso's car broke down near here as he and his family were on the way from Kansas City to Fort Dodge, Ia.

He sent his family home and had the car hauled into a farm yard. Later when he tried to direct a mechanic to the car he couldn't remember how to get back to the farm.

For three days he and police covered every mile of every gravel road in the area with no success. At last, Adelrick Hengeler called police and asked them to help find the man who had left the car in his farm yard.

ALBANIA WILL OPPOSE GREEK BID FOR EPIRUS

Paris, Sept. 14 (AP)—A renewal of diplomatic attacks on Greece was expected at the peace conference today, with Albania scheduled to appear before the military commission to oppose Greek demands for Northern Epirus.

Granted unlimited speaking time by the commission in a tempestuous session yesterday over American, British, French and Greek opposition, Albania's delegation was prepared to accuse Greece of being an undemocratic country seeking territory from and trouble with three of her Balkan neighbors.

The Albanians also were expected to reiterate charges already made before the United Nations security council in New York—that Greece was creating Albanian border incidents and persecuting Albanian, Macedonian and Bulgarian minorities, in many cases forcing them to flee.

The Greeks and the Albanians still are technically at war because of the 1940 Italian assault on Greece launched from Northern Epirus.

Tempests flared in two commissions yesterday as delegates of the Slavic group pressed for special privileges in hearing two nations—Albania and Bulgaria—in their demands on Greece.

A. V. Alexander, Britain's first lord of the admiralty, walked out of the military commission when it voted to give Albania a full and unlimited hearing today.

The Bulgarian political and territorial commission was split when Chairman K. V. Kisselev of White Russia ruled, over strenuous objections, that Bulgaria had the same right as a conference member nation to be heard, and overruled Greek demands to be heard on the ground that they were made too late.

After he adjourned the meeting and left with the other Slav delegates, Britain, America and Australia remained to insist that Greek demands on the Bulgarian border be heard. Still to be decided is whether a Greek motion to send her demands to the military commission would be referred, as Kisselev ruled, to an emergency council of the Big Five.

A special coffin was obtained, measuring six feet, nine inches long and 41 inches wide—compared to normal coffin measurements of six feet, three inches by 22 inches.

Fatally Burned In Automobile Crash

West Chester, Pa., Sept. 14 (AP)—An unidentified man was burned to death and four persons were injured slightly early today as an automobile crashed into a parked car a mile north of the Delaware state line.

The victim, reported officials of the Pennsylvania state police barracks nearby, had been seated in the parked car.

Occupants of the other car were identified as Herbert H. Venable, Jr., 25, Wilmington, Del.; David M. Buchler, 26, Woodcrest, Del.; Jefferson T. Ewing, Jr., Rockland, Del.; Miss Mary C. Mills, 21, Wilmington. All suffered injuries.

Pittsburgh, Sept. 14 (AP)—Howard G. Krupp of Doylestown, Bucks county, was elected president of the County Controllers association of Pennsylvania yesterday at the group's convention here.

Other officers: Arthur Collins, Mercer, first vice president; Charles A. Graeff, Schuylkill, second vice president; Elmer Davis, Cambria, third vice president; Ralph C. Bennett, Beaver, secretary, and Alan Weinsheimer, Lehigh county, treasurer.

CRANEMEN STRIKE

Pittsburgh, Sept. 14 (AP)—The Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. reported today a strike of 75 crane-men had idled about 800 workers and forced curtailment of operations at its Second avenue plant.

A company spokesman said no grievance had been filed in accordance with a CIO-United Steel Workers contract and that it intended to bring action for violation of contract and to seek damages for lost production. CIO President Philip Murray has been asked to intervene in the dispute, the company said.

NO MEAT FAMINE THIS FALL SAYS CHIEF OF O.P.A.

Washington, Sept. 14 (AP)—OPA Chief Paul Porter told housewives today to quit worrying about a "meat famine later on this fall and winter."

"The much-publicized 'meat famine' will be disclosed for the irresponsible rumor that it is," Porter said in his weekly radio (ABC) discussion of food and price matters. He also promised the meat ceiling prices will be maintained, and will be enforced.

From government food experts, meantime, came an estimate that the sugar price increase approved by OPA will add from $160,000,000 to $200,000,000 to food budgets in the next 12 months. The increase amounts to about two cents a pound in retail stores.

Sees More Supplies Porter said a shutdown of some meat plants and lack of meat at some butcher shops was a natural result of the big rush to market livestock while prices were uncontrolled.

"We're paying now for the abnormal glut of meat we had in July and August," he said. "That was the time when the sky was the limit as far as prices were concerned."

Meat supplies should be "fairly good," Porter predicted "after we get over the hump of the next six or eight weeks."

Promising a stiff fight against black markets, Porter said some OPA agents "will work in butchers' aprons right behind the counters of retail stores, with an ear open for any illegal shenanigans by meat suppliers."

"It will be pretty tough on the chiseler," he added.

The new sugar ceiling is effective Wednesday.

The increase, which OPA previously said was probable, became definite last night when it announced ceiling increases of one and one-half cents a pound for cane and beet sugar and 1.37 cents for raw cane sugar at the refiners' level.

When wholesalers and retailers pass this on, housewives will be paying 9 to 10 cents a pound for refined sugar at the grocery, compared with present national retail averages of 7 to 8 cents, the agency said.

Also on Wednesday, the Price Control Board will take another formal look at the prices for butter and cheese and debate whether price controls should go back on those commodities. They have been free from control since June 30.

U. S. MAY HOLD SOFT COAL PITS ANOTHER MONTH

Washington, Sept. 14 (AP)—The Government today faced the prospect of continuing its control for another month or more over the soft coal mines which it seized to halt the strike of last spring.

The owners split into two groups with divergent views over terms of a contract with the United Mine Workers (AFL) which would allow the Government to return operation of the mines to them. The mines were seized last May 22. An agreement was signed by John L. Lewis, UMW president, and Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug a week later, ending the strike.

Admiral Ben Moreell, the coal mines administrator, proposed that the mine owners get together with Lewis on a contract similar to the Lewis-Lewis agreement, with important amendments. Without a contract between Lewis and the operators, the Government fears a resumption of the strike if it surrenders control of the mines.

Southerners Differ

All but the southern group of operators accepted, with some revisions, Moreell's proposition. The southern group, headed by Edward R. Burke, balked at three points.

They were the five-cent royalty on each ton of coal for a union welfare and retirement fund; federal mine safety code which would supersede state regulations, and a pattern for unionizing supervisory workers.

When the operators divided over a new contract at yesterday's conference, Lewis said he would have to place the policy questions involved before the United Mine Workers' convention in Atlantic City, October 1-5. After that, he said, he would be ready to sit down again and talk about a contract with instructions from his membership.

Since Lewis and other UMW officials may desire to attend the AFL convention in Chicago which immediately follows the UMW convention, a resumption of negotiations seems unlikely for at least a month.

Rehr will be elevated automatically to the post of counselor in 1947, succeeding William H. Regan, of Scranton, who yesterday assumed the position.

Things Of The Soil

Storing Apples And Pears It is impossible to establish a hard-and-fast rule for storing apples and pears for home use over winter and for marketing later in the fall. First, there is a difference among varieties as to proper storage methods and temperatures, as well as stage of maturity at which each variety is picked to store. And what is more difficult to determine, there are differences in storage requirements with the same variety grown on different types of soils and in different regions. However, there are a few established principles which every grower should observe in storing these fruits for later consumption or sale.

Late-maturing varieties of apples and pears are the only crops which should be stored. If earlier varieties are desired for winter use they should be canned, dried or prepared by some other method, such as processing them into vinegar, unfermented apple or pear juice or preserving.

Over-ripe fruits do not keep well. It is preferable to harvest apples when they are mature but still firm. In the case of pears it is advisable to store varieties that reach maturity just before the onset of cold weather and still do not show evidence of complete ripening. Kieffer pears, for example, will not keep in good condition more than 2 or 3 weeks, regardless of the temperature, if they are ripe when stored. Experienced growers remember a rhymed rule for storing Kieffers—"Pick the whole crop when the first pears drop." Kieffers can be stored at this stage of maturity for as long as 3 months if held at a temperature near 32 degrees, then ripened deliciously by holding them for 2 or 3 weeks at 60 to 65 degrees.

Late-matured apples may be stored safely for home use in a cool basement or cellar or buried in an outdoor pit. In fact, the burial method is highly desirable where storage space is lacking. Apples may be heaped in a conical pile and covered with dry straw and then protected with a slight covering of soil until freezing weather arrives. Free ventilation through a wooden shaft up through the center of the heap is necessary. Again, varieties differ greatly in their keeping qualities by burial. Baldwin, Rhode Island Greening, Northern Spy and Winesap are the best keepers for burial.

Scald, a widespread disease of stored apples, is believed to result from unescaped gas the apples release. Two practices are recommended to reduce scald dangers—Storing apples in small volumes rather than in huge piles, and using oiled paper.

Numerous kinds of storage rots attack apples. In many instances the rot-producing organisms must find a broken place in the apple skin to gain entrance. Too much emphasis, therefore, cannot be placed on the importance of avoiding bruises and skin abrasions in handling apples from tree to storage room. Too, apples should be kept from exposure to high temperatures after they are picked.

Most apples and pears grown in a moist, rainy season are much more difficult to keep safely in storage than fruits from a dry, somewhat droughty season.

Fruit brings healthful nutrients, vitamins and minerals to winter diets. Apples and pears are easiest of all fruits to store in their natural state. No efforts should be spared to provide the family with an ample all-winter supply.

BARRED FROM OWN WEDDING BY PICKETS

Philadelphia, Sept. 14 (AP)—Jules Benner, a drummer in a society orchestra here, today found himself in the uncomfortable position of being unable to attend his own wedding because, he says, James Caesar Petrillo, president of the AFL-federation of musicians, refused him permission to cross a picket line.

"If I go to my own wedding, I will be barred for life from earning my livelihood at my own profession—music," declared Benner, a member of local 77 of the musician's union. Benner, 25, said he had planned to be married to 19-year-old Irene Taxin on September 28 and had reserved the main ballroom of a Kirby chain hotel here (Warwick) for the wedding and reception. Musicians at the hotel have been ordered to remain idle by Petrillo until the New York musicians' strike is settled.

Have To Notify Guests "We can't go elsewhere because other fall weddings and affairs already are booked solidly in hotel ballrooms and auditoriums," Benner asserted.

"We could hold the wedding without music, but I can't cross the picket line," he continued. "I guess we are just faced with sending out telegrams to our wedding guests, postponing the ceremony until the strike is ended."

Benner said Guy Scola, secretary of Local 77, had appealed the cases to Petrillo but that the music czar "flatly refused to make an exception in my case."

Cannot Cooperate With More Than One Secretary Of State

Paris, Sept. 14 (AP)—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg called for unity on American foreign policy today, declaring "we can only cooperate with one Secretary of State at a time."

"Rightly or wrongly, Paris is doubtful of this unity this morning," said the Michigan Republican, adviser to Secretary of State Byrnes at the peace conference.

His statement, issued by the U. S. delegation, apparently was designed as an answer to the Thursday night speech by Secretary of Commerce Wallace. In that speech, which President Truman said he approved, Wallace appeared to differ in some respects from American foreign policy as outlined by Byrnes. Peace conference sources said Byrnes had not been consulted about the Wallace speech either before or after its delivery.

Inquiries as to whether Byrnes had telephoned President Truman to determine whether the speech heralded a change in United States foreign policy received this reply from an American delegation spokesman: "Any announcement of Mr. Byrnes' telephone conversations with the President will have to come from the White House."

The plans for the U. S. Capitol were submitted in 1793 by William Thornton, physician of Tortola, West Indies.

CIO Auto Workers To Claim Benefits

Philadelphia, Sept. 14 (AP)—The CIO-United Auto Workers will demand application to their contract of any pay benefits that may possibly be reached in the settlement of the nation-wide maritime strike providing "the formula reached . . . is higher than the 18½ cent formula which settled the auto strikes," says UAW Vice-President R. J. Thomas.

Prior to an address here before a veterans housing committee last night, Thomas, who is also chairman of the CIO Committee of Housing, told reporters the UAW has long watched wages and living costs with a view toward "keeping them on a relative basis."

"We're not setting any figure at all," he added, "all we want is the cost of living and the wages paid the workers brought into the same relative position that they were formerly."

Delone Downs Maroon Eleven 13-6; Fumbles Prove Costly

For about five minutes of the third period when they scored their touchdown, the Gettysburg Maroons looked as though they might open their 1946 football campaign with a victory, but the display of offensive form was short-lived and the Forney-men bowed to Delone Catholic, 13-6, Friday night at McSherrystown before an enthusiastic crowd of over 3,000 fans.

Fumbles paved the way for both touchdowns as the Squires and others kept the Maroons in hot water throughout the better part of the game.

The contest was the first played under Delone's new $5,000 lighting system. Hundreds of Gettysburg fans, including the high school band, accompanied the team to McSherrystown.

Squires Score
Delone scored first late in the second quarter. Bunty punted to the Maroon safety man on the Gettysburg 17 and on the fumble Captain Clingan recovered. Rider smacked through the line for five yards and then Bennett went around right end for the score. Rider's placement for the extra point was wide.

Early in the third period the Maroons showed their best form when they tied the score. After failing to gain on the second half kickoff, Bennett punted to Hershey who returned to the Delone 44. Hess whipped a pass to Westerahl for the Maroons' first down on the 26. A long pass to Sterner in the end zone was incomplete. Sharrah went off right tackle for several yards and lateraled to Hess, the play eating up nine yards. Hess lost a yard on a spinner but Charley Rogers picked up six yards at right end for a first down on the 12.

Hess Tallies
Hess pounded through right tackle for eight yards and then hit the same spot to go over the goal line standing up. Sheffer's placement for the extra point was low.

The Squires drove 31 yards for their winning touchdown in the early minutes of the final period after Murren recovered a fumble deep in Gettysburg territory.

Rider and Noel each lost a yard on end plays but Bunty passed to Clingan to move the ball to the 23. Small went around right end for a first down on the 12. Rider and Noel on two plays made a first down on the 4. Rider, on two plays, smashed over for the score. He added the extra point on a line plunge.

As mentioned before, the Maroons were in hot water throughout with most of the play being confined to their territory.

Bad Start
Right at the start Coach Forney's lads were in trouble. Hess returned the opening kick to his 35 but on the first offensive play R. Sanders recovered a Maroon fumble on the 35. After Rider went through the line for a first down on the 23 the Maroons braced and took the ball on the 22. However, again on their first offensive try a fumble, recovered by Zinn, gave Delone the ball on the 21. Once again the Maroons were equal to the occasion and after yielding a first down, took the ball on a fumble, Hess kicking out to his 40 with Noel returning to the 30.

Neither team could make much headway in the early minutes of second period but the Maroon fumble of a Delone punt opened the way for the first tally after the mid-point mark in the quarter.

Coach Walecki's outfit was outplayed during the touchdown drive made by the Maroons in the third period but held the upper hand throughout the remainder of the contest.

Devoid of Penalties
In the dying minutes of the game the Maroons took the ball on downs on their own 28 and after failing on a pass elected to use the remaining precious seconds on ground plays which brought a first down on the 40 as the game ended.

Delone's all-veteran team out-gained the local's nine first downs to four. Honors were nearly even on passes, the Squires completing three in 10 tries while the Maroons made good on two of seven tries.

The contest was unique in that not one penalty was inflicted throughout the entire play.

Far from disheartened following the defeat the Maroons are determined to get back into the win column next Friday evening when York Catholic high comes here for the first home game.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Springfield, N. J., Sep. 14 (P)—If Smiley Quick, the people's cherch of the National Amateur Golf tournament, should win the title today, a lot of folks are wondering what they'll do about the next walker cup team. . . There never has been a public links golfer on the International team, and as a matter of fact none ever has shown the proper qualifications. . . And it also is a well-known fact that many members of exclusive clubs are inclined to look down their noses at the common people who play golf just because they like the game and who pay a buck or two as they go—and that's Smiley all over. . . Win or lose, Quick probably has done more to popularize golf with ordinary people than anyone who has come along in years. . . He's the only player who has been in all three big tournaments—publinks, open and amateur—and he's been at or near the top in all three. . . He's got the kind of personality that has the gallery rooting for him.

WONDER?
After he dropped a shot right in the middle of Baltusol's water hole—a 120-yard affair that even a duffer could kick the ball across—Quick was asked how come? . . . "Well," Smiley explained, "I had played four rounds with that ball and it needed washing." . . So far nobody has had an explanation of the other two shots that went into the drink on the same hole yesterday.

SPORTS BEFORE YOUR EYES
Syracuse U. is about to find out how come those Oklahoma A. and M. wrestling teams are so good. Syracuse has hired Joe McDaniel, three times national mat champion for the Aggies, as its wrestling coach. . . Duke's football team, which hasn't had new uniforms in four years, may be the source of considerable confusion for the fans—especially that guy in section 23 who brought a bottle. The Blue Devils rounded about 30 good jerseys to start the season, but many of the numbers are duplicated and the press announcement may be: Clark, No. 20, ran 40 yards when Milner, No. 20, threw the key block. . . .

Los Angeles Dons Beat Dodgers, 21-14
Los Angeles, Sept. 14 (P)—The Los Angeles Dons made the All-America conference opening an artistic, if not financial success last night by lacing the Brooklyn Dodgers, 21 to 14.

Only 19,500 fans were on hand as the Dons, sparked by the passing of Charley O'Rourke and the running of Charley Fenenbock and John Kimbrough, showed a fair balance of power, plus a rugged enough defense to withstand Brooklyn's second half bid, sparked by the whitlash pitching arm of Glenn Dobbs.

The Los Angeles entry, which had not impressed in two exhibition games, snapped into high for 14 points before the Dodgers could get untracked.

The loss left the Brooklyn with one win and one loss in the new conference, while Los Angeles had a big win up against no defeats—and the hope that next week's game with Miami here will attract a few more customers.

Boston Is Calm About Pennant
Boston, Sept. 14 (P)—Boston had its first major league baseball pennant in 28 years today but its residents failed to kick the lid off in celebration of the Red Sox feat.

Bartenders in the downtown areas reported that ardent fans were buying their own drinks and showing no outward display of emotions.

A Scollay square newsboy—holding up a morning paper proclaiming that the Red Sox clinched the American league pennant—shouted: "extra, Brooklyn Dodgers beat the Cardinals!"

Mrs. Lena Vivona of Everett, walking through the Faneuil Hall market district, was asked what she thought of the Red Sox. She had a question of her own: "Can you tell me where I can buy some meat?"

At the Red Sox office at Fenway park, Eddie Doherty, the team's publicity man, said: "We chased around the room a little bit when we got word but we had to get right back to work." He and a large staff are busy rejecting more than 400,000 applications for World Series tickets.

Eastern League
(By The Associated Press)
The pennant winning Scranton Miners have gained the finals in the Eastern league playoffs, and Sunday's game may determine whether the Hartford Chiefs will battle them for the Governor's cup.

Hartford has three games in the best four of seven series and second place Albany has one.

The Miners won their fourth consecutive victory last night over the Wilkes-Barre Barons, 5-3, while the Chiefs again defeated the Senators, 13-7. The series will continue in Hartford tomorrow.

Point, N. Y., in today's game at Villanova stadium.

The contest, a home-coming affair, was the first football game on the home field for the Wildcats since 1938 when they started playing home games at Shibe Park. A crowd of 10,000 was expected to turn out for the Wildcats' opening of a 10-game schedule.

Bullet Mentor Seeks Togs For Big Lineman
"Hen" Bream, Gettysburg college football coach, has sent out an SOS call for equipment to outfit Louis Ressler the biggest prospect ever to report to him in his coaching career. Ressler, a product of York high tips the scales at 250 pounds and is a candidate for one of the tackle positions. Despite his weight Ressler is one of the fastest linemen among the squad of sixty candidates for the 1946 team who have been going through intense training at two practice sessions each day since September 4.

DODGERS BEAT CARDS; BOSTON CLINCHES FLAG
By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)
One of the reasons Brooklyn has taken the Dodgers baseball team to its heart is because those unpredictable bums never know when they're licked.

Knocked silly by the St. Louis Cardinals in the opener of the "fight-for-the-flag" series Thursday afternoon, the Dodgers yesterday punched out a 4-3 victory over the Cards, narrowing St. Louis' lead to a game and a half.

The "big one" comes up today with Brooklyn's Vic Lombardi primed to match left-handed slants with St. Louis' Harry (the Cat) Brecheen.

Sox Clinch Flag
Unlike the National, the American League flag race is all over with the Boston Red Sox the official 1946 champions. The Sox clinched the flag yesterday when they eked out a 1-0 win over Cleveland while the second-place Detroit Tigers, only team with a mathematical chance to overtake the Sox, were beaten by the New York Yankees 5-4. Ted Williams provided the Sox margin of victory, an inside-the-park home run.

In other American League games, the Chicago White Sox took both ends of a double header from the Philadelphia Athletics 3-1 and 4-2 while Jack Kramer hurled the Browns to a 7-0 shutout victory over Washington under the lights in St. Louis.

In the National, Pittsburgh made it six victories in their last seven games with a double win over the Braves in Boston 4-2 in 14 innings and 10-1. The Cincinnati Reds downed the New York Giants at the Polo Grounds 4-1 and the Phils beat the Chicago Cubs in Philadelphia by the same 4-1 score.

Inter State League
(By The Associated Press)
The Interstate league champion Wilmington Blue Rocks squared their league semi-final series with Hagerstown last night by defeating the Owls, 10-4. Each club has now won twice in the seven-game set.

At the same time in the other semi-final series, the Allentown Red-Birds gained their first playoff victory against three losses by defeating the Harrisburg Giants, 5-4.

Wilmington will meet Hagerstown and Allentown will meet Harrisburg again tonight.

Luckman Leads Bears To Victory
Philadelphia, Sept. 14 (P)—Powered by eight completions of 17 attempted forward passes by Sid Luckman coupled with a crashing 218-pound line, the Chicago Bears walked the Philadelphia Eagles 24-12 at Municipal Stadium last night.

The Bears forwards halted their National league foes' running attack at will. The Eagles did manage to shake Steve Van Buren, 1945 leading ground gainer, loose a few times—Van Buren gained 68 yards in eight tries, one of them a 51-yard scamper for the Eagles' first touchdown.

But the Bears gave most of the 82,218 fans who watched the exhibition contest, sponsored by the Philadelphia Inquirer's Charities, Inc., the impression they could apply the pressure whenever they wanted. Two of Luckman's tosses were perfect touchdown strikes to left end Ken Kavanaugh.

Today's Talk
WASTE

From my earliest remembrances I have abhorred waste. It was ground into my consciousness when but a small boy, by my father and mother. To feed a family of seven on a salary of hardly more than six hundred dollars a year, meant thrift on the part of all. But it seemed at that time no hardship, for none of us knew any other way.

Favored by fortune, or fate, or whatever you wish to call it, though I choose to call it the willingness for hard work, and an undefeatable spirit. I have been greatly blessed in a long and successful business career, but I abhor waste now as much as when I had nothing but what I carried in my head and on my back. I must admit though that I am often extravagant! I love beautiful things, exquisite art, and books, books, books! But even these things can be given away and thus serve the further purpose of bringing much of the joy to others that they have brought to me.

John Galsworthy had this line in one of his most beautiful poems: "Death is such a waste of me." Death, in a useless and unnecessary war, however, is a far greater waste. Galsworthy, though no more among those who loved him, still lives in the beautiful and well worthwhile books and poetry that he created in life. But the waste of war extends from generation to generation, and its terrible costs are put upon the backs of the innocent to bear as best they can.

In nations, where all freedom is snuffed out, the waste of mind and soul goes on uninterrupted. And the bodies of human beings become as so much driftwood, sacrificed wantonly and without mercy. And without hope as well. One trembles to think of a possible all-out civil war in China, where hundreds of millions may be called upon to uselessly fight and slaughter each other, while at the present time, millions there still starve. And this as an aftermath of years of suffering and warfare.

Never has this world needed so desperately a thrift in the saving of human lives, for the whole world must either be built up, or torn ruthlessly to suffering bits. It seems to this humble human being that nothing short of a world-wide spiritual revival is to save this beautiful world from utter chaos and ruin.

Just Folks

DISAPPOINTMENT
Once I heard my father say
When it rained on picnic day:
"Disappointment, you will learn,
Comes to every one in turn.
This is part of life, my boy,
Just as much a part as joy."

"Hopes are often unfulfilled.
Little goes as men have willed.
When denied is all you've planned,
This I'd have you understand:
No one always has the sun.
Rain is sent to every one."

"Missing goals you'd hoped to win.
Shrug your shoulders; set your chin.
When your fondest dream is wrecked,
Know 'tis something to expect.
How so greatly you have cared,
For your losses be prepared."

"Life's a blend of good and ill,
Face them both you surely will.
Light of heart be while you may;
Strong of heart when skies are gray.
Never show too much regret
When you've disappointment met."

Need Motor Mounts?
Clutches are getting blamed for a lot of vibration and chatter which is due entirely to worn, loose or dry motor mountings. Being made of rubber these have their limited life of usefulness, but because they are out of sight they usually are out of mind. When the rubber of these mountings lose their elasticity you begin to get something of a metal contact, the engine transmitting to the frame and the car in general a lot of the vibration which normally would be confined to its own area. Good motor mounts not only absorb engine vibration but cushion road shocks and help to keep the motor and transmission in alignment. If your car is on the old side you can give it a dash of youth by replacing the old motor mounts now.

Meeting The New Cars
As more and more people take delivery of this year's cars we cannot escape the conclusion that the observers must have been a bit on the side of inaccuracy when they spread the thought that there really is nothing new about Detroit's present output. A survey of the new models shows that there is quite some novelty and more than the usual difference between various makes. One car, for instance, features 6-cylinder brakes, six individual brake cylinders being used for the four service brakes. Another has a parking brake light. A third has wide-base rims which mark the beginning of a new era in comfort. I am particularly interested in the fact that six makes of cars specify 20 grade oil for summer use. With the exception of the largest model of one of the long-time favorites only two cars have gas tanks with capacity for over 20 gallons—and both are new makes. Spark plugs with aluminum oxide insulators are a current innovation; not to mention the self-adjusting, self-centering brake shoes. Those of you who do a bit of fussing about the car will be glad to learn you can now obtain special clips for helping to hold gaskets in place while installing them. It answers a bothersome problem in a most simple way, eliminating need for strings or shellac. The new clips hold any gasket in place properly aligned, hole for hole. And you can use the clips over again!

Mechanic Joe Speaking
"If car owners would only stop to realize it the thing that most often spoils an overhaul job is failure to put the cooling system in good condition. Any overhauled engine is naturally stiffer and thus is prone to run a bit on the hot side. Thus, if the cooling system isn't up to par there is bound to be trouble. The mechanic then gets blamed for something which should have been taken care of quite aside from the overhaul."

"Get after the cooling system before you order new piston rings and bearing inserts. Of course the sloppy engine will be filling up with carbon and that will encourage overheating, but don't assume that a carbon and valve job alone will bring down its temperature. Get after every phase of the cooling system if you want the overhaul to be a real success."

Too Thin for Safety
When the man at the service station tells you that the old brake lining is starting to score the drums and that you ought to have the brakes relined at once don't go along on the assumption that you can ignore his advice simply because you believe that you can always have the drums rebored and trued up. There's the chance that this work can't be done properly because of a danger point beyond which reboring is neither practical nor safe. When drums become thin from cutting down the scores they may be quite satisfactory for normal stopping yet will be found wanting when an emergency stop is required. That is always a bad situation because the fact that the brakes work well for

Just Getting Warm Up
I suppose you, too, have often wondered how much longer these prewar cars can be expected to dash about and hold together. But some facts which one of the statistical companies recently issued show that half the cars on the road really haven't been given a real workout as yet. These are the ones which have been driven more than 10,000 miles but not more than 40,000. Another 33 per cent have mileage between 40,000 and 70,000, while only 10 per cent have gone over the 70,000 mark. Obviously there's plenty of life in the old car yet.

Prediction on Roads
When the car seems to ride more easily and more smoothly you may think you are influenced by some psychological quirk but the truth is that roads are of varying degrees of hardness. It is more a matter of foundation than top dressing, although invariably roads with the hardest top also have the most firm foundation. I struck a Rhode Island road recently which was quite cushioning. It was a bit on the wavy side, but this seemed to accentuate its softness. Dirt roads, if smooth, are

A Los Angeles reader tells me that he found the points a bit on the close side on his car and checked the faint glow of the indicator by replacing them. Apparently there was a slight circuit between the contacts, just enough to make it appear that the dimmer switch wasn't doing a complete job.

MULTI-MILLION DOLLAR PLANS FOR ROUTE 22

Harrisburg, Sept. 14 (P)—A multi-million dollar improvement of the William Penn highway in Huntingdon county was proposed by the State Highways Department today in calling for bids October 18 on a 7.13-mile by-pass.

Described as "one of the largest post-war road improvement projects" to be made, the department said the construction will eventually eliminate three dangerous underpasses and "speed up traffic on this heavily traveled section of U. S. Route 22."

Lack Steel Now

Due to the federal government's ban on the use of structural steel, the bids next month only provide for placing abutments for a proposed new bridge across the Juniata river and the Pennsylvania railroad main line tracks east of Huntingdon. Steel for another structure to carry the re-located highway over the Huntingdon and Broad Top railroad also cannot be obtained at this time, the Department added.

"Once the federal restrictions on the use of structural steel are removed, the Department is prepared to proceed with bids on final completion of the project," the announcement said.

To Move Tracks

The entire project involves approximately 1,500,000 cubic yards of excavation and 75,000 square yards of concrete pavement. Plans for it were completed in 1942 but war restrictions prevented construction.

Bids will be asked on the project in its entirety and on three sections with plans calling for a three-lane concrete pavement the entire distance of the by-pass, connecting near Mill Creek with a road of similar width and terminating near the Pennsylvania Industrial school.

The new bridge over the Juniata river will join the present highway between the Schneiders and Standing Stone underpass and will require relocation of a section of the railroad's main line tracks to provide width for a portion of the proposed new highway.

WORK HARD ON REGISTRATION

Harrisburg, Sept. 14 (P)—Both Republican and Democratic organization workers stepped up last minute efforts to swell Pennsylvania's voter registration lists today, the final day to enroll for the 1946 general election.

Approximately 4,375,000 persons were eligible to vote in the May primary election and both parties, aided by non-partisan civic groups, have sought to add hundreds of thousands of new names to the list. Leaders of the registration drives in recent weeks have stressed that one of the requirements of good citizenship is enrollment as a voter and participation in the November election.

With voter registrations in May divided among 2,580,048 Republicans, 1,740,535 Democrats and 55,082 others, no tabulations of the new enrollments have been made to give any indication of the size of the increase or trend or party alignments.

The State Elections Bureau explained it will probably be late in October before reports from county commissioners will permit a compilation of the new state totals. Scattered reports, however, indicated heavy registration this week with Frank H. Wagner, chief of the Dauphin county registration bureau, reporting the number of new registrants is running ahead of that for other recent gubernatorial election years.

Confluence Will Equip 6-Man Team

Confluence, Pa., Sept. 14 (P)—Citizens of this tiny Somerset county community, who have paraded through the streets the last three nights to express disapproval of a ban on using the town park as an athletic field, planned to meet tonight to raise funds to outfit Confluence high school's six-man football team.

A crowd estimated at 600—the town's population is only 1,035—last night organized the Confluence Athletic association, with the object of obtaining a place for the community's youngsters to play.

The newly-appointed burgess, H. D. Pore, started it all Wednesday when he invoked an old borough ordinance which forbade athletic events in the park.

Guests were Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Naugle, daughters Betty Jo and Winifred, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Riggeal and children, Emma Jane and Ivan, of this place, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shuyler, Biglerville.

Mr. and Mrs. James Brandt and children, Charlene and James, of Cumberland, Md., were recent visitors with Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hanger.

15 pounds is the answer to how to keep things cold for a fishing trip, a de luxe picnic or a motor outing. These cases will keep food and beverages hot or cold, and — believe it or not — will make and store ice.

From here on through the fall you'll be hearing a lot about the new gasoline heaters. One just announced features a push-button heat selector. At your finger's tip you can have temperatures of 50, 60, 70 or 80 within 33 seconds at 50 degrees below zero.

Queries of the Week

Q. Is it all right to use No. 10 oil in with the gasoline? If so, how much for each ten gallons of fuel? L. K. M.

A. I'll answer this with a big "why." Hasn't your car an oiling system? If you want a little upper cylinder lubrication you can add some special oil for this purpose. Personally I prefer use of additives in with the crankcase oil. These are solvents which aid valve and piston ring action.

Q. There is a peculiar noise in the chassis of my car whenever it is running about 40 miles an hour and going over a wavy road. I have been told that this is due to trouble with the clutch plate. Do you agree, and if so, what shall I do about it? G. McN.

A. I do not believe that the clutch is involved in this at all. Any change in angularity of the drive line should not affect the clutch because it is positioned between the transmission and the engine. Check into the universal joints.

Q. The electric engine temperature gauge on my car does not work. Is there any harm in letting it stay this way, or should I have it replaced? M. M. N.

A. The inoperative gauge does no harm to the engine, but how are you going to tell when the engine really is overheating unless the gauge is working, or you install a new one?

Q. I notice that at different times there is a wide variation in the oil consumption of my engine. Speeds for these comparable periods are about the same. F. B. N.

A. The difference is largely in your driving which, in turn, is influenced by traffic conditions. Many quick stops or slowdowns will waste oil.

Mr. Russell will answer questions regarding the safe care and operation of your car. Just address him at 254 Fern street, Hartford, Conn., and send stamped, self-addressed envelope for a personal reply.

FEW MAY BE AFFECTED BY RULE CHANGE

By JAMES MARLOW
Washington, Sept. 14 (AP)—To you, the average worker, what does the Government's new ruling on wage raises mean?
(The ruling was handed down Thursday night in the Maritime strike.)
It means nothing to you, for nothing has changed in the government's rules on wage increases unless you're a seaman or perhaps a shipyard worker.
Here's a boiled-down explanation of the new ruling, with background.
The government set up its present wage rules last February 14 as a means of keeping wages and prices in line. The OPA was to be boss on prices. The boss of wages was to be the wage stabilization board.
How Rules Work
The rules worked this way:
1. Suppose a boss wanted to raise wages. Would he have to ask permission of the Wage Stabilization Board? No, unless he wanted to raise prices to offset the pay raises he gave.
2. If he wanted to raise prices, because of the wage raise, he'd have to ask the wage board how much he could raise. The board would set the limit. Then, after getting board approval for a certain pay raise, the boss could go to OPA for permission to raise prices.
3. But on any job where a wage raise was going to cost the government money—such as on ships owned by the government—the wage board had to approve before any raise could be given, no matter how little.
Two Are Untouched
No. 1 and No. 2 still stand, untouched by last night's ruling which affected only No. 3. For it was on No. 3 that the Maritime strike broke. Here's how:
Two AFL seamen's unions, one on the east coast, one on the west coast, got private shipowners to give them a pay raise—$22.50 a month on the west coast, $27.50 on the east coast.
But a number of those companies were operating for the government ships owned by the government. If those raises went into effect on the government ships, it would cost the government money.
So, under rule No. 3, outlined above, the wage board was asked to approve the wage increases. But the board ruled that those raises were too much, that on both coasts the men should get only $17.50 a month more.
The reason for this ruling was that last June the board had allowed shipowners to give the seamen of the CIO's National Maritime union—rival of the two AFL unions—an increase of only $17.50 a month.
Thus limited by the board to no more than the $17.50 allowed the CIO seamen, the two AFL unions struck. They said the owners had agreed to give them $22.50 and $27.50, and they wanted it.
May Not Affect Many
The wage board refused to budge. The strike went on. So President Truman turned the problem over to John R. Steelman, his stabilization director. He can change the wage rules.
Steelman changed rule No. 3 a bit, just enough for the seamen to get their wage increase without any say-so by the wage board at all. He did it this way:
From now on, he said, the government can pay wages as high as those given by private employers in the same industry if the private employers don't try to use the higher wages as an excuse for boosting prices.
This Steelman ruling won't affect many people, except the seamen and, perhaps, shipyard workers if some are in government yards and some in private yards, and the latter get a raise.

Dig Another Grave
By DON CAMERON
Chapter 3
A grumble of thunder and a splash of rain awoke Martin to the new day.
Opening the outer door a crack, he stretched a bare arm into the hallway for his Morning Record.
He leafed through the twenty pages of the first section. Then he repeated the procedure more slowly. At length he let the paper slide to the floor, where it spread over the carpet. Not one word about Searle!
Martin was not given to the indiscriminate use of strong language, but in his mind was a composite picture of two men: Searle, who had warned him, "King, you're going to get the surprise of your life," and Ennis, who had killed a story about Searle once before.
He scuttled into the Record Building, down past Martin, but did not look up when Martin stood beside his desk. He spoke out of the corner of his mouth.
"Front office, son. Ennis wants you."
"What happened to the story?" "He killed it."
"What went wrong, Bill? Did Searle find a rich friend?"
"Ennis is going to see about settling his debts and giving him a fresh start."
The reporter stared.
"I think," Doran said, "Ennis's daughter was engaged to Searle once upon a time. I think, Searle got hold of Ennis and threatened to involve the gal in some kind of scandal unless he was protected."
Martin's eyes were bitter. "What a lousy publisher I picked to work for."
Turning from the corridor into the anteroom of the publisher's office, he collided violently with a young woman on her way out. He halted, fumbling for words of apology, as she gasped and stumbled backward.
She was a pretty girl, about twenty-two, small and shapely. Her hair was a wavy russet brown with glints of copper, falling in a short bob about a face remarkable for cinnamon lips, a faintly upturned nose and eyes of hazel.
When it came to hauteur and petulance, she had them, too.
"I should think," she said in a voice as even as a razor's edge, "you'd get yourself a dog or a cane."
He said, "With what your father pays me I couldn't make the down payment on a tin cup" and glared just as haughtily as Barbara Ennis swept past him and marched down the corridor, her spindly heels rattling.
Martin crossed to the inner sanctum. At the far side of a massive desk, set before windows that framed half of New York Harbor, George Ennis faced him.
"Ah," Ennis said. "Come in, Martin." He was a plump little man, round-faced, with oily strings of hair plastered against a polished scalp.
"Doran tells me you've killed the Searle story," Martin said.
"There are—ah—certain reasons why it would be undesirable to print it at this time."
"I know of none."
"They needn't concern you." Martin's anger overwhelmed an unfledged instinct for diplomacy. "You can throw away our best local story in six weeks, you can shut up Clarabelle Messmer and Morrissey with cash, you can impress upon your daughter that it doesn't matter if she is indiscreet, because she has a rich father—but you can't conceal from yourself or anybody who knows the facts that you've fallen for blackmail."
Ennis was shocked. "It occurs to me, Martin, that you may be dissatisfied with the way things are run here."
"I am."
"Very well, Mr. King," Ennis stretched a pudgy hand toward the telephone. "I'll instruct Mr. Doran to release you from our payroll."
Martin drew a long breath. "I'm going to get your job," Searle had promised.
Martin said, "That's all right with me. I may starve, but I'll feel cleaner."
Back in the newsroom Doran fixed Martin with an acrimonious eye. "Why did you argue with him? Didn't anyone ever tell you he's the boss here?"
"I don't like him, Bill."
"You don't have to. I'm not in love with him, but I'm polite to him. Now I've got to beg him to let you come back."
"Don't bother. I'll get along."
Doran rubbed his chin and scowled. "What about those notes you got?"
"I'm keeping them among my souvenirs."
"A good idea. Keep 'em safe. Ennis must have forgotten them. Maybe you can come back on the job with a raise in pay."
"You mean, maybe I can blackmail the old buzzard?"
"Who said anything about blackmail? If I happen to mention that you'd kept the statements, and might peddle them to a scandal sheet like the Star, would that be blackmail? If he calls you up to apologize, it will be strictly his own idea."
Doran became absorbed in a proof sheet. "Meet me at your favorite gummill at ten, when I get through."
"The Gold Mine," Martin said.
"Morrissey owes me a champagne party."
Marty went to his apartment.

Searle. Did you?"
"What difference would it make?"
"I certainly didn't want anyone to lose his job."
He said, "I'm not worrying. Why should you?"
"Wouldn't you like to go back to work?"
"Supposing I did?"
"I could probably arrange it. I usually get my way with Dad."
His stony glance, avoiding her, saw a small group emerge from Morrissey's private office. He stiffened, recognizing Clarabelle Messmer in an evening gown of baby blue; behind her Ennis, in evening clothes, with an unhappy cast to his plump features; Morrissey, smiling without mirth, and — Searle.
Making no effort to keep the rage out of his voice, Martin said, "Save your influence for those who need it. I got along for quite a while without the help of the boss's daughter, and maybe I can continue to do that. I'd prefer it that way."
Even then she shamed him. Her cheeks paled and flames sprang up in her eyes, but she spoke calmly. "I see. I thought perhaps. . . . But I was mistaken."
She left him standing there.
Dexter lifted and emptied his glass. He, too, had been watching the mirrored group; but Martin could not tell from his expression whether the sight of his former wife stirred him with any emotion, or even any curiosity about how she had fared in the conference just ended.
Searle came toward the bar, his face flushed. He had been drinking heavily, and Martin surmised that his late companions had not spared his feelings. He leaned against the bar and ordered a double scotch.
Hemingway shook his head.
"You're on the Indian list."
"Skip the wisecracks," Searle snarled. His eyes fell upon Martin, ten feet away. "And skip the drink, too. Why should I hang around a dump where the customers smell worse than the help? Here's a guy I had to get kicked off a newspaper today, he was so annoying."
It was more than Martin could take on top of everything else. His anger boiled up and spilled over. He took three swift steps toward Searle, dodged a wild punch and drove his fist straight from the shoulder into the flushed face. Searle lurched backward, tripped and fell; blood spurted from his nose, ran over his chin, and splashed his starched shirt front.
A waiter helped Searle to his feet. While men and women stood up at tables to watch, Searle was hustled to the door and thrust into the street, shouting profane threats and struggling against the hands that propelled him.
"You didn't have to smack him in here," Hemingway complained to Martin. "You could have got him outside and done a good job on him. What'll you drink on the house?"
Doran answered for Martin. "He won't drink anything. We're getting out."
From the bar they went to a luncheon, where they drank coffee and talked for the better part of an hour. It was nearly 12 when they separated and Martin headed once more for his apartment.

Town Delays Its Homecoming Fete

Mayor Joseph L. Mathias of West-minster has issued the following statement regarding the city's plans for Homecoming Day: "The city of Westminster has not forgotten her boys and girls who contributed so magnificently to our nation's success in World War II."

"The Homecoming Day is being arranged by the city," Mayor Ma-thias said, "and it will be truly a community welcome-home party. All local organizations—the veterans groups, the service clubs, and other civic organizations—will be asked to assist."

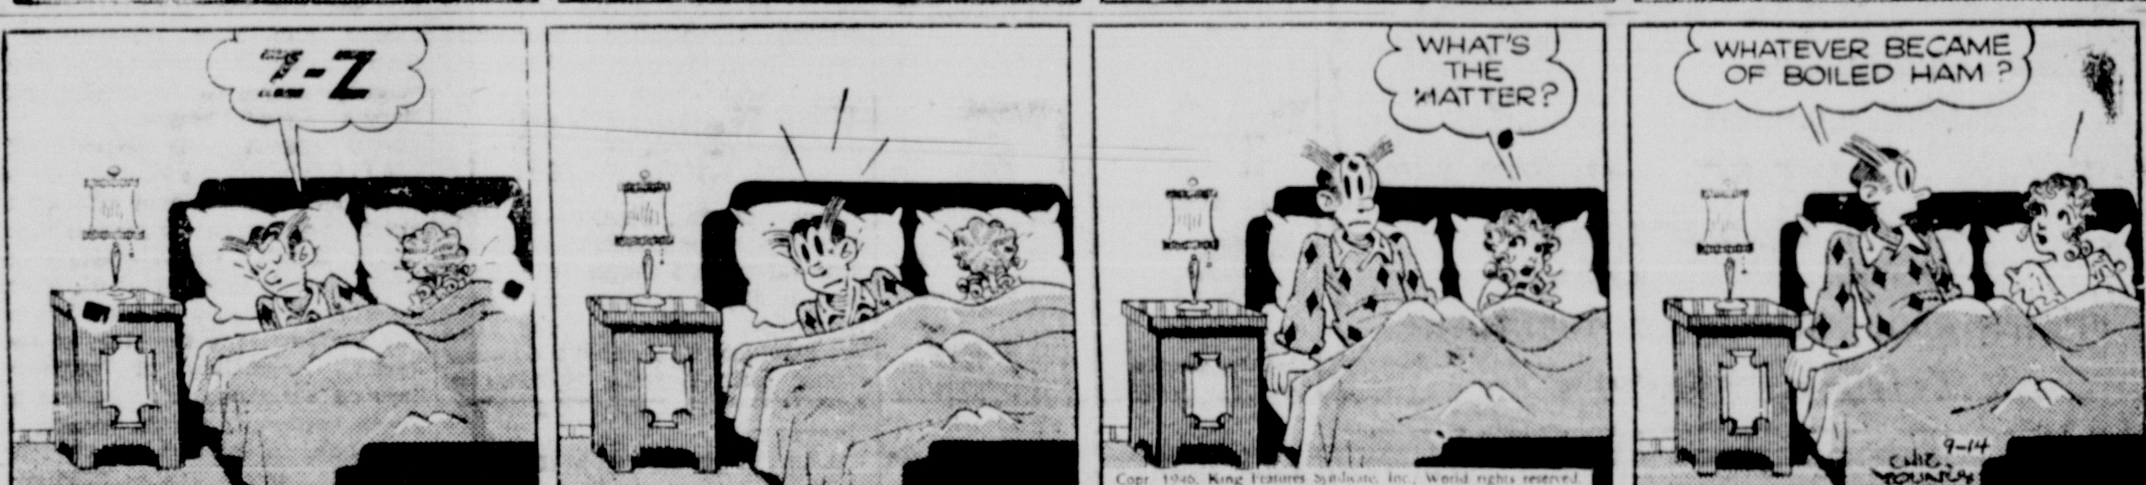

"The city had hoped to arrange the event prior to this time," the Mayor added, "but the national shortage of meat and other foods, as well as the acute famine in the war-torn countries of the world, seems to indicate that it would be better to defer the affair for several more months and possibly until early spring."

"The general committee is be-ing formed," Mayor Mathias con-cluded, "and the details of the pro-gram will be announced as soon as possible."

Free On Bail For Playmate's Death

Pittsburgh, Sept. 14 (AP)—Charles Hazlett, Jr., 13-year-old boy charged with the slaying of a 12-year-old playmate last Dec. 31, was free under $2,500 bond today, awaiting trial in Allegheny county court.

The boy was released in custody of his father. State attorneys offered no objection to the posting of bond.

Officers said Charles had signed a statement in which he said he shot his friend, Michael Gerrich, accidentally with his father's rifle while the boys were playing a holdup game.

New York City's licensed amusement places have an estimated seating capacity of 1,559,904.

Cancer is the first cause of death of women between the ages of 35 and 55 in the United States.

MISS PERKINS RETURNS
Washington, Sept. 14 (AP)—Frances Perkins is bringing her three-cornered hats back to the Washington scene — this time she is a member of the Civil Service Commission. President Truman announced at his news conference Thursday that the former Secretary of Labor will succeed Mrs. Lucille Foster McMillin on the commission. Miss Perkins resigned from the cabinet June 30, 1945.

Bombay is the center of India's cotton industry.

His remarks yesterday were endorsed on the floor, at least in part, by the delegates from Cuba, Norway, Lebanon and the United Kingdom.

The Peruvian's views briefly were:

1. The proposed interim commission should be limited initially to ascertaining information about the million or more refugees in Europe and the Near East and should be responsible directly to the Economic and Social Council.

2. It should be given a limited budget and should be required to report back to the Council at a fixed time, possibly six or eight months from now.

3. If it proved to be doing an efficient job, its functions and its funds should be enlarged from time to time.

4. Action on the constitution and budget of the proposed permanent refugee organization, meanwhile, should be held up indefinitely.

War Wound Cited As Murder Defense

Somerset, Pa., Sept. 14 (AP)—The defense case for Robert W. Sehn, 28, killed last year-old veteran charged with stabbing fatally a Boswell coal miner, neared its conclusion today after two psychiatrists testified the former soldier suffered from "episodes of fury" in which his consciousness was blanked out.

Sehn was put on trial in the death of Henry A. Bieniasz, 28, killed last July in the firemen's club at Friedens. Sehn testified earlier he had no recollection of the tragedy.

Dr. S. S. Meyer, of Johnstown, formerly senior medical officer at the U. S. Navy hospital in San Diego, said he examined Sehn more than a month before the slaying and found him suffering from citation of the brain as a result of the explosion of an 88 mm. shell in Germany in March of 1945. Dr. Wilbert Winey, also of Johnstown, supported the other physician's testimony and both agreed Sehn was subject to seizures during which he would lose all knowledge of what he was doing.

MONDAY AND TUESDAY

An exciting dramatization of a vivid chapter in the history of the old West is seen in RKO Radio's spectacular melodrama, "Badman's Territory."

Randolph Scott and Ann Richards respectively play the hero and heroine of the picture, which deals with old events in the Oklahoma Panhandle. For forty years this area, larger than the state of Connecticut, was completely lawless because of legal oversights which left it without any governmental jurisdiction.

After epic conflict the region was included in the newly formed Territory of Oklahoma in 1890, and amid this conflict is played the romance and action of the film. Scott plays a sheriff and Miss Richards is a fiery newspaper editor. George "Gabby" Hayes shares honors with them as a genial bandit.

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY

A warmly human theme against the colorful background of historic old Tascosa country of pioneer days, "Boys' Ranch," which opens Wednesday on the Majestic screen, offers entertainment that is both tender and exciting. It is the story of Cal Farley's rebuilding of wayward boys on his ranch in the heart of Texas Panhandle's open spaces.

Included in the cast are "Butch" Jenkins, James Craig, "Skippy" Homeier, Dorothy Patrick, Darryl Hickman and Sharon McManus.

Olivia DeHavilland

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

Olivia De Havilland who gives one of her most dramatic performances as "Judy" in "To Each His Own."

Boasting all the requisites of a once-in-a-blue-moon hit—a stirring story, a cast of fool-proof performers, and some of Hollywood's technicians—Paramount's "To Each His Own" arrives next Friday at the Majestic theatre with Olivia DeHavilland starring, and stage star John Lund making his motion picture debut.

"To Each His Own" is a story of a great love. It is the story of a girl who lives a lifetime in the few hours she has in which to meet and fall in love with a flying hero of World War I. It tells of the anguish and sacrifices that are hers when she gives up the son born of that love in order to relieve him of the stigma of his illicit birth. It carries through to the heart-tearing finale, when mother and grown son meet again in a scene fraught with potent dramatic possibilities.

PERU LEADS IN MOVE TO CURB REFUGEE POWER

Lake Success, N. Y., Sept. 14 (AP)—Peru took the lead today in a growing movement to limit the scope of the proposed international refugee organization now being considered by the United Nations economic and social council.

As the council prepared to meet at 10:30 a. m. (EDT) to continue discussion of Secretary-General Trygve Lie's proposal for an interim commission to take over the refugee work immediately from UNRRA, Peruvian Delegate Alberto Arca urged the question be approached with caution.

He said he not only favored drastic modification in Lie's proposal but that he believed any action on a budget for a permanent refugee organization would be premature on the basis of information now available.

Arca Parro, who found considerable support for his general views on this subject at yesterday's council meeting, indicated he would offer formal amendments to Lie's proposals and would suggest the appointment of a small committee to try to work out an acceptable interim measure.

BLIND MUSICIAN HOPES TO REGAIN SIGHT, SEE WIFE

New Castle, Pa., Sept. 14 (AP)—If a delicate operation performed recently on blind Magkon Martin, 26, is successful the young musician is bound and determined that after he takes a good look at the pretty wife he has never seen he's going to dash down the street for two miles—taking in the sights every step of the way.

Two Philadelphia eye specialists operated on Martin's eyes in mid-August but it will be several days before he learns if he will regain the sight lost 16 years ago in an explosion of dynamite caps.

"It's a 50-50 chance," he said. "I have no reason not to hope that I may be able to see again. Now all we can do is wait and pray."
